Bay gas system up and running

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Still wondering why it all happened, Bay St. Louis city officials were breathing a sigh of relief Friday in the wake of an unprecedented, citywide gas service disruption.

Service was lost to the city around 4:20 p.m. Wednesday, apparently due to closure of a safety valve on the Koch-Gateway Co. gas distribution system that supplies the city.

The underground, locked valve is located some three to four miles east of Bay St. Louis, and halted the flow of gas from the city's supplier to the city's lines. The result: 1,650 Bay St. Louis residents, and 500 in the Henderson Point area saw loss of service.

By Friday, crews had restored service to 85 to 90 percent of the city's customers who, suddenly Wednesday evening, had no natural gas. Some still don't — workers won't restore service to vacant houses, due to the dangers associated with re-lighting pilot lights.

Mayor Eddie Favre lauded efforts of city utility workers, outside crews and City Hall staffers who worked around the clock to resolve the major crisis.

He also thanked the public for patience. "As bad as it was, it could have been much worse," Favre said.

Favre and other city officials were continuing to meet with supplier representatives Friday — sessions the mayor said

"As bad as it was, it could have been much worse."
—Favre

would continue until everyone understands what happened, and why. "Then we'll do everything we can to ... make sure it won't happen again."

He and other city officials praised the Koch-Gateway personnel as having "bent over backwards" to come to the city's aid in the crisis. "They have come in and assumed responsibility from the get-go," Favre said.

There were no significant problems in the city's dealing with the crisis. "The biggest thing was inconvenience the people had to go through," Favre said of the public.

There were no guesses as to the cost of the exercise. But early speculation on the cause of the problem was that a valve undergoing testing had inadvertently been left shut.

City officials are awaiting word from Koch-Gateway on why the valve was closed. "It

Supplier issues statement

The following is a statement issued Friday by Kim Carraway, spokesman for Koch Industries Inc., Wichita, Kansas.

At approximately 4:40 p.m., Jan. 11, Koch Gateway was notified that pressure had been lost to the gas supply of the City of Bay St. Louis. Within one hour, Koch personnel located a main-line block valve approximately three miles east of the city in the closed position.

Koch subsequently notified Entex, who also services customers in the area, of the situation. Crews from Koch and the city are in the process of restoring gas supply to approximately 1,650 customers, and Entex is restoring service to approximately 500 customers.

Since the valve mechanism extends underground, Koch will excavate to determine whether the underground portion of the valve mechanism contributed to the loss of supply.

For that reason, Koch has been unable to determine conclusively the exact cause for the loss of service. However, based on its investigation to date, Koch believes the valve may have been left on the closed position during a testing procedure.

In addition to replacing the valve end/or valve indicator, Koch intends to install telemetry in the area to ensure closer monitoring and is evaluating several other corrective measures.

was definitely a situation beyond our control," said city Utilities Director Les Fillingame, since the valve is not part of the city's equipment.

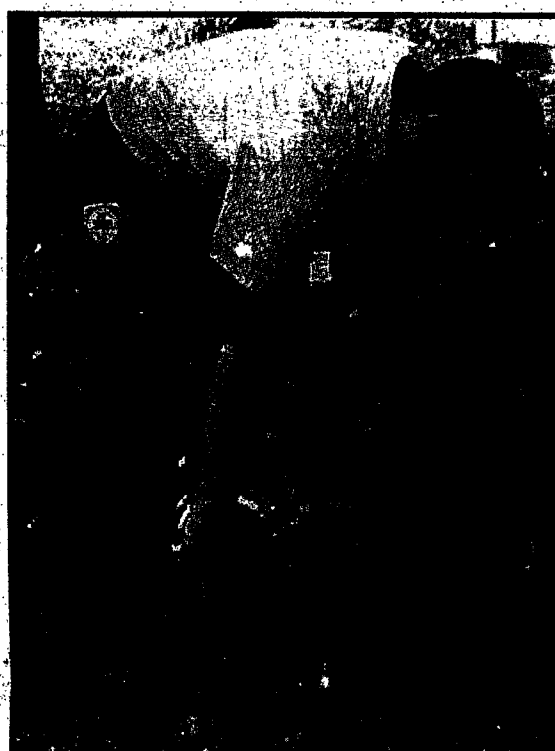

The first indication of a problem, said Fillingame, was a 4:20 p.m. phone call from a customer complaining their gas was shut off. Then, in rapid succession, the city phone lines went wild.

"I knew we had a big problem, because calls were coming in from all over the city," said Fillingame. City crews checked the pressure at the metering system on Ulman Street, and found none at all.

"We knew then it was a problem beyond our control," he added. The supply line for Bay St. Louis runs from Pass Christian under the Bay to Ulman Street, where the entering volume of gas is metered.

The entire Public Works Department was mobilized for the emergency, ranging from gas system crews to water, sewer

Hancock Task Force, federals break major drug operation

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

The Hancock County Task Force initiated a drug operation in the county that has led to federal indictments of four, said Bay St. Louis Detective Terry Eley, task force member, Friday.

The Operation led to the arrest of Fernando Perez, 27, Guatemalan citizen, who was residing in Brownsville, Texas, by Drug Enforcement Administration officers on Dec. 20. He is charged with conspiracy to possess a controlled substance with intent to distribute.

LaCoste was released from jail under a $10,000 bond, Eley said. The amount of seizure was three kilos of cocaine and 1,300 pounds of marijuana, Eley said. He was also charged with one count of interstate travel, aiding and racketeering and one count of using a telephone to commit a crime. Eley said that Perez, whose bond was set at $1 million in Texas, will be brought to Mississippi to face similar charges.

Also arrested was Mark H. Lacoste, Kiln, Miss., who is charged with conspiracy to possess a controlled substance with intent to distribute and one count of using a telephone to commit a crime, Eley said.

LaCoste was released from jail under a $10,000 bond, Eley said. Alos Jesus Arnold Sliis, a United States citizen residing in San Antonio, Texas, was charged with conspiracy to sell a controlled substance with intent to distribute 18 kilos of cocaine and two counts of using a telephone to commit a crime, Eley said.

Nathaniel B. Cochran, 18, 17306 Highway 603, Bay St. Louis, has been charged with selling a controlled substance. Also charged was a female juvenile, said Bay Detective Terry Eley, Hancock County Task Force spokesman. Bond was set at $5,000 for Cochran, and bond for the juvenile was $1,000. Because of the nature of the charges, the juvenile will be tried as an adult, Eley said.

Fire origin investigated

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER
Officials are still investigating the origin of a fire which destroyed two Bay St. Louis businesses.

It was commercial property owned by Jay Triche in which a floral shop and a beauty shop were operating out of the building located at 1060 East Hwy. 90 in Bay St. Louis.

Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Andrew Lizana said the fire began at approximately 10:17 p.m. Friday, Jan. 6 and continued until almost 3 a.m. Saturday morning.

"There was heavy fire damage. The state and county fire marshals are investigating, along with the city to determine the cause," Lizana said.

The Bay St. Louis commercial complex also houses Redditt Pest Control and Redditt Pool & Spa Supplies.

"The fire chief told me the building was well built because the fire kept itself contained and couldn't get oxygen because it was airtight," Triche said.

The amount of the damage is unknown at this time. Triche said insurance adjusters are still working on the estimates of damage.

Aimee Grego, owner of Aimee's of Course, a flower shop located in the building, said she does not yet know the extent of the damage, but she did receive both fire and smoke damage to her business.

She said she wanted to thank her customers for their support during this time and that she can still be reached through her business phone number.

The other business involved in the fire was Hair It Is. Lizana said that 11 firemen responded to the call.

"Eight regular firemen, three volunteers, two pumpers and the chief's car responded to the call," Lizana said.

The volunteers who responded were from the East Hancock County Fire District.

Compretta submits
 Bill for help on R.R.
 crossings closures

Representative J.P. Compretta wants to make certain that local citizens get an opportunity to express their views in the future regarding proposed closing of railroad crossings in their communities.

The Hancock County legislator said he is introducing a bill aimed at strengthening the present law dealing with procedures to be followed by the Mississippi Department of Transportation in abolishing railroad crossings on public roadways. Among other things, the bill would require a public hearing to be held in the county or municipality where the crossing is located before the crossing may be closed.

A formal notice of the hearing would have to be published three consecutive weeks in a local newspaper.

Compretta said the legislation also provides for a petition to be filed by the local governmental entity with the Department of Transportation on proposals to close railroad crossings. Under the existing law, the Department of Transportation has the power "upon its own motion or upon complaint filed" to close railroad crossings following an investigation to determine if the closure is justified. The law provides for a hearing on the matter if requested.

"It's clear the law has some loopholes in it that my bill attempts to close. I want to make the law very specific that a hearing will be held so people living in the area have an opportunity to express their opposition or support before a railroad crossing is closed," said Compretta, who represents House District 122 in Hancock County.

Compretta said the legislation was prompted by citizens' complaints in Bay St. Louis in er and sidewalk workers. In all 28 city workers hit the streets to begin a laborious, time-consuming shutdown of the 1,650 gas meters on homes and businesses.

Police, fire and rescue personnel were put on standby, said Fillingame, until the initial crisis was resolved. Had the weather been colder, shelters would have been established and supplied for the elderly and infirm.

"We're all just very, very thankful that it wasn't cold," said Fillingame. "Thank the good Lord that we had 70-degree weather in January."

Even once the city determined the cause of the gas pressure loss, safety dictated that workers shut down meters servicing every customer, repressurize the system, and return to all 1,650 customers to restore service. That includes turning on the meters that had only hours before been shut down, and re-lighting countless gas appliances.

To accomplish the work, workers fanned all over town, like a squadron of fireflies — their orange lights flashing in the night, up one street and down another, criss-crossing in local memory of such a city-wide system failure, aside from Hurricane Camille in 1969.

Restoring service ran at an orderly pace, officials said, but it's a naturally time-consuming process in a city that features many older homes with older appliances.

Relighting pilots in some of those appliances is, at times, a risky and tricky affair. Some homes consumed 30 minutes of worker-time, as crews struggled to fire up pilot lights in hard-to-reach places.

Public Works Director Ron Vanney said the system experienced a pressure loss in the late '80s, but nothing of the magnitude of last week's crisis.

He lauded his crews as "probably the best Public Works Department on the Coast," saying they accomplished their task with no major problems and no injuries. The public, he said, was cordial and patient for the most part. "It went as smoothly as it possibly could have ... It was too good to be true."

There were some exceptions to cordiality on the public's part, however. One customer called City Hall to see if he'd be billed for the month, in light of the loss of service. One man grilled a crew on why residents didn't get advanced notice of a system shutdown.

Some female homeowners didn't want male crews entering their residences. And some homeowners simply didn't want anyone from the outside coming inside, officials said. And many homes didn't have anyone inside at all, due to the weekend population the city features.

As the service restoration continued, Fillingame said Koch-Gateway workers are removing the valve at issue, to test it for clues as to what caused the shutdown. It exists as a protection to the city, in the event of a rupture of the supply line under the Bay.

Fillingame said city officials want to consider an alternative route to supply the city, possible from the west, in the event of a future emergency.

While the rehash and investigation continues, Koch-Gateway has been "very concerned and very helpful," Fillingame said. "They haven't tried to shy away from responsibility. They were as shook up as we were," by the experience.

Even before the tab is tallied on the city's costs — including overtime and lost revenues to the city gas system — Koch-Gateway officials "made a very broad statement that they didn't want this to cost the city anything," said Fillingame.

And officials of the supplier company have told the city they plan to install a new monitoring system to give early warning of supply line failures in the future.

"Probably the best Public Works Department on the Coast."

paths and searching for meters.

While the city has a computerized listing of all of its water and gas customers, a computer consultant was called to City Hall to organize the gas customer data on a street-by-street basis.

Gas crew personnel were teamed with other personnel less familiar with the system. Working until 2 a.m. Thursday, the crews caught a couple hours' sleep and hit the streets at 5 a.m. to continue.

"It's tough. 1,650 homes. It was real tough," said Fillingame of the meter-locating process that ran throughout the night.

While it was fairly easy to identify which homes have gas service, he said, it's more difficult to locate those meters in the dark.

The work was accomplished with the help of some Koch-Gateway crews, while some officials of the Houston, Texas, firm flew into town to deal with the crisis.

Fillingame said the supplier had the problem identified within an hour and a half of the initial call to them from the city.

It was, he said, the first time

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Hats off to our many City of Bay St. Louis employees who went night and day to bring up the gas system to residents.

The last time I can recall a complete loss of gas in Bay St. Louis, was during Hurricane Camille in 1969. One other time since then, pressures really dropped very low during one of those infrequent freezes, and some Bay customers lost gas service.

I have been told the problem of the gas being turned off was caused by the supplier and is under investigation.

The residents of Bay St. Louis are sure lucky we were at a time when it was warm.

One of the most important concerns of the city was the safety of its citizens.

Safety was the reason every gas meter had to be turned off in the city.

The entire crew of 28 for the Bay St. Louis Utility Department was involved with the problem of turning off the meters. They then had to turn the meters back on when the gas supply returned.

They were also assisted by eight or nine folks in the area from Kock/Gateway, the gas supplier of Houston, Texas.

Other City Hall staffers manned telephones night and day helping coordinate the calls with workers in the field.

It will probably be a month or so before city employees will be able to turn on all the gas meters, because some homeowners are out of town.

Many of the homes have older models of heaters, hot water heaters, ovens and stoves with pilot lights. These could have been very dangerous if they had been on when the gas went out.

It does takes time to turn off 1,650 meters. It really takes more time to turn them all on, as a city worker had to make sure someone was at home when the gas meters were restored.

City employees were very helpful in lighting pilot lights for our residents. This is greatly appreciated, too.

We have many residents who are unable to handle such chores, and it is great for the city to do such for residents.

Trying to catch everyone at home is a very big problem, as in many cases, there are times when no one in a family is in.

Once again, thanks to all our many dedicated city workers for their extended hours during and extreme emergency.

By the way, some 500 gas customers in the Henderson Point/Pass Christian area were also without gas at the same time.

I spoke to Mayor Eddie Favre Friday morning, and he offered a special thanks to the residents of Bay St. Louis for their understanding, assistance and patience.

It was a terrible situation, but fortunately as little inconvenience as possible was caused.

The proposed expansions of the two elementary schools in the Bay-Waveland School District show the continued growth in our area.

There was a time not too many years ago when the Bay-Waveland District had a slight decline in enrollments.

That has not been the problem in the past few years.

As more residents moved into the area, there is more demand on more space for education.

It is good to see our system going after the extra classrooms for the increase in the number of students.

I am glad school officials are not talking about the use of modular buildings, which in essence are trailers.

It seems those types of buildings are to be used on a temporary basis and end up on a permanent basis for many, many years.

With U.S. Savings Bonds, the more you give, the more you receive.

Take Stock in America

Every day, we pass a little of ourselves on to the next generation. What perspective means, when to use a fan brush, which colors blend for a perfect autumn landscape, where to highlight. The knowledge that we give stays with them forever.

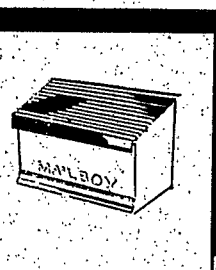

Giving U.S. Savings Bonds also passes an important lesson on to the future generation. Bonds can teach our children how to save, how interest grows and how a small investment can help make their dreams come true.

Buying U.S. Savings Bonds contributes to a solid and secure America for generations to come. What a great way for you to say, "I believe in your future!"

Bonds are as easy to buy as they are to give. Buy them at half their face value through your local bank.

So share the tradition of U.S. Savings Bonds. They're the gift that gives back more than you've given.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

State pharmacy director responds to TV program

Dear Editor:

This letter is written in response to a segment about pharmacy errors which appeared on ABC's Prime Time Live on Wednesday, Jan. 4. This program has raised a considerable number of questions from pharmacy patrons, and as executive director of the Mississippi Pharmacists Association, I wanted to address some of these concerns.

Although solid data does not exist to document the magnitude of pharmacy errors that occur, MPhA and all pharmacists are very concerned about the problem and have been pursuing solutions for some time. Be assured that pharmacists are always striving for an error-free practice environment, but often the underlying causes for error are overlooked.

The Mississippi Pharmacists Association supports fully the concept of total patient care, which has become known by the term Pharmaceutical Care. We feel strongly that the American public's quest for low-cost pharmaceuticals should not compromise the quality of care provided.

Pharmaceuticals, if used correctly, are still one of the most economical ways of improving or maintaining a healthy lifestyle. In fact, in contrast to the material presented on the program, the Gallup Poll has named pharmacists as the nation's most trusted professionals for the sixth straight year.

Unfortunately the pressure to decrease health care costs has led to a high volume marketplace without sufficient supportive personnel. Many pharmacy patrons noticed that on the program, there was little evidence of technician assistance and the pharmacist both filled the prescriptions and ran the cash registers.

MPhA is working to help pharmacists redesign their practices to minimize system-related problems that may lead to dispensing errors.

As Diane Sawyer stressed in the program, we recommend that all pharmacy patrons become proactive consumers by developing a relationship with one particular pharmacy or pharmacist.

Personally knowing your pharmacist and having your complete medication record at one pharmacy can substantially decrease the risk for medication errors.

Patients counseling and drug regimen review are required by law in Mississippi. The type of service, however, may vary from pharmacist to pharmacist. Just as you spend time in selecting the appropriate physician, you should choose the professional that will manage your drug regimen carefully.

Look for a pharmacist who meets your specific needs, and be sure to communicate your concerns with him/her.

If your insurance plan requires you to patronize a particular pharmacy and that pharmacy does not meet your expectations, voice your concerns to both the pharmacist and the benefits manager.

Most importantly, make informed decisions. Know what medications you take and how to take them.

If the drug product you receive looks different or the instructions are not clear, do not take the medication until your concerns are addressed. Remember, communication is good medicine.

If you have any questions about the Prime Time Live program, please contact your pharmacist or the Mississippi Pharmacists Association.

Sincerely,
Samuel E. Daniel, PD, FACA
Executive Director

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

By Senator
Bill Johnson

A weekly update of the 1995 Legislative Session

The second week of the 1995 Legislative Session could fore-shadow things to come as the Senate continued its work by taking a lead role on two highly-publicized issues.

Bills addressing an income tax reduction and compulsory automobile liability insurance received a majority of favorable votes.

The State of the State Address was heard by a joint session of the House and Senate on Tuesday at noon. The theme, 'Hometown Mississippi... A Place In The Future' set the tone for the Governor's remarks.

Forde challenged lawmakers to use "economic and budgetary successes to achieve social renewal in Mississippi." He believes our state is on the cutting edge of progress but still must reform the welfare system, improve public schools, control crime, and cut taxes.

Senate Bill 2116 received unanimous approval by the Senate and echoes the belief that the time has come to require motorists to purchase liability insurance just as they purchase car tags. Anyone driving a vehicle in this state would furnish evidence of financial responsibility.

Failure to show financial responsibility would result in a $500 fine and suspension of a driver's license. Residents without insurance involved in accidents can expect to be fined $1,000.

Other measures in the bill raise the minimum amount of damages that must be paid from liability insurance and speed up the filing of accident reports by drivers and law officers.

The proposed effective date for this bill is July 1, 1995, but it must survive the committee process in the House of Representatives before they have the opportunity to consider it.

On Thursday, Mississippi taxpayers got a victory in the Senate by a vote of 36-16 favoring the proposed individual income tax reduction legislation. Senate Bill 2365 would equalize tax deductions over the next three calendar years and eliminate the marriage penalty presently in the state tax code.

Currently, married couples filing joint tax returns are allowed a tax exemption of $9,500, as are individual heads of households while singles receive an exemption of $6,000. The bill would phase in a higher exemption for married couples, heads of households and singles. By 1998 a married couple would have a secured tax exemption of $14,000, as would heads of households and singles would be eligible for a $7,000 tax exemption.

Mississippians could expect an estimated $78 million tax savings in individual income taxes over the three-year period. This proposed legislation would take effect Jan. 1, 1996.

The first deadline of the session was met by the Senate on Friday, Jan. 13. General bills and constitutional amendments are now drafted and must be introduced by Monday, Jan. 16.

Committees will continue working throughout the next few weeks to handle over 1,200 bills already introduced by the Senate.

During the 1995 Session Senator Johnson may be reached at P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215 or by calling 359-3770.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Legalization of caning introduced in Legislature

It's incredible to me that anyone would propose a measure in the Legislature to legalize caning and other corporal punishment of miscreants in this state. It's more incredible to me that some people up at the Legislature would seriously consider such a proposal.

However, such a measure has been introduced and apparently is gaining some favor in committee.

Evidently those who would support legislation to install corporal punishment have no memory of the infamous "Black Annie," the leather lash that was used on inmates at Parchman State Penitentiary until a little over 30 years ago with legal sanction of state law.

Well, I'm one who remembers, and it's not a pleasant memory.

In fact, I'm rather proud to say that I had something to do with getting rid of "Black Annie" back then. As the Mississippi correspondent for The Times-Picayune in those years I kept close watch on Parchman and the penal system.

One of the matters of which I was most persistent was the use of the lash on prisoners, and whenever there was a change of governors or superintendents at Parchman I always pressed the point of what he was going to do about getting rid of the lash.

There were some brief successes in the late '50s when Bill Harpole, then the Parchman superintendent under Gov. J. P. Coleman, assured me he was going to use the lash very little if at all. But once Gov. Ross Barnett came into office in 1960 and put his own superintendent (a retread from earlier years), back went "Black Annie."

One thing that ingratiated me to Gov. Paul Johnson was that he said he did not approve the use of the lash on prisoners when he came into office in 1964. Moreso was the assurance to me by his Parchman superintendent, Fred Jones, that the use of the lash would be stopped.

That was the end of the notorious lash which had become the backbone of discipline at the sprawling penal institution. Finally, a few years later, the law authorizing it disappeared from the books.

"Black Annie" was an ominous four-and-a-half-foot-long leather strap, six inches wide, nearly an inch thick, fastened to a heavy wooden handle that prisoners referred to as "the bat."

The lash was used to punish inmates for all kinds of infractions, ranging from attempts to escape to stepping on a young cotton plant in the fields. Its use was left up to the camp sergeant who supposedly filed a report and gave the number of lashes to be used.

The inmate was stripped naked, spread-eagled on the ground in front of other inmates, and the lash applied in the buttocks area. I talked to prisoners who had been whipped, and they said it was an extremely dehumanizing experience, sometimes emasculating the recipient.

It's hard to imagine in our supposed enlightened American society of 1995 that anyone could think of reversing the advances we have made as a civilization and restore barbar-

BREWER'S WORLD

By Jimmie Brewer

Good morning everybody. Shake them cobwebs out, pat your tail-wagging dog on the head, put one of those Cajun-style ear-to-ear smiles on, and fire up the day.

Well folks, it's finally happened. My golf game has rocketed to a new level. I'm gonna go out on a limb and make a prediction: By the end of 1995 I will be a household name known for my golfing.

Almost every aspect of my game has improved immensely over the last few months. The most important being that I'm getting really good at cheating. After all, it's not how good you play, it's how good you SAY you play.

The next most important aspect of the game is how well you dress when playing. You will no longer see me out there in cut-offs and a free cigarette T-shirt. Nope, I got me some real golfin' duds. And there will be no more muddy old tennis shoes on my feet. I got me a pair of authentic Kmart golfing shoes.

My equipment has also had a total facelift. I've come a long way in that department. It began about six months ago when I finally decided to stop using that hot-pink golfing bag. I found one in the attic that appeared to be tan or brown at one time.

Next came the clubs. Thanks to my good friend Hib, who was tired of seeing me use women's clubs, I now have a set of men's clubs that actually all match. My golfing etiquette and terminology are as good as any on the course now. You won't find me in 1995 standing on the tee-off area beating my chest like Tarzan and screaming cuss words into the air. Oh no, I'll just calmly tee up another ball and say, "I'm taking my mulligan."

And from now on when I hit my ball in a hazard or deep into the woods I'll claim, "I was distracted" and take my free drop in the middle of the fairway where the ball would have landed if Fred Couples would have hit it.

How you grip and swing the club is also very vitally important. I used to have a slight "slicing" problem when I struck the ball. But, countless golfing partners in 1994 were giving me advice and were having me make some slight adjustments to compensate for the slice.

In fact, I've made so many adjustments that I now face away from the hole, make my arms look like a pretzel and swing the club between my legs. I'm not getting as much distance, but my ball is going a little straighter.

That's right, dudes and dudettes, this is gonna be MY year. I can't wait to see all you folks on the course.

Praise for do-gooders this week goes out to those city dudes in the Bay who tirelessly made their way around town turning on everybody's gas.

Concerned residents meet

BY JIM BREWER

Members of Hope Haven, a not-for-profit tax-exempt organization, and Hancock residents met Wednesday at Carol's Old Time Restaurant in Bay St. Louis.

Hope Haven was formed by concerned Hancock County residents to establish a shelter for abused, neglected and/or abandoned children of Hancock County.

The organization and Juvenile Court Judge Ann Arras Williamson recognized the need for a facility in the county. Currently abused and neglected children are placed in emergency facilities out of the county and in some instances out of the state.

County records indicate that from January 1993 to August 1994 there were 547 cases in which children were placed in emergency housing.

Hope Haven is currently funded exclusively by private donations.

Topics discussed in the meeting included initial and ongoing fund-raising activities, as well as the need to get Bay St. Louis and Waveland city administrations and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors involved in the project.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 15 at 5:30 p.m. at Carol's Old Time Restaurant in Bay St. Louis.

Landy named city engineer

Mayor John Mason of Waveland announces the appointment of Stephen Landry as Public Works director/city engineer.

Landry, a resident of Waveland, holds a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering and has extensive experience in the fields of public utilities, project design and personnel management.

Mayor Mason said, "This is part of my goal of restructuring our workforce to provide the citizens with a higher level of services now and in the future."

ic practices of a dark past.

Of course, to a lot of Americans, the idea of caning has suddenly appeared to be a cute way of punishing pernicious acts of young people and others ever since the story last year unfolded when Singapore sentenced American youth Michael Fay to a caning for malicious mischief of spray painting some automobiles. Served him right, many Americans said, especially since he wasn't their child.

Now are we to borrow a traditional punishment from a less-enlightened civilization and apply it to Americans, in fact Mississippians? As my witty friend, Clarion-Ledger columnist Orley Hood pointed out the other day, the institution of caning in Mississippi could lead to all sorts of strange problems, such as the need for a Department of Caning Personnel and the hiring of trained caners who are hard to find these days. And would the canings all be brought to Jackson, put on TV, or held out in the countryside, say at Luka or Hushpuckena?

Rep. Tom Cameron (R) Greenville is sponsor of the caning measure (it also includes other forms of corporal punishment) which comes in the form of a proposed constitutional amendment. If adopted by the Legislature it would, of course, have to be submitted to the voters in November.

Once put on the ballot it would evoke emotional public debate that would divide the people into two angry camps, something potentially as divisive as if the people of this state would have been able to vote on whether or not they wanted racial segregation.

The federal courts and the U.S. Constitution, of course, have something to say about that, thankfully.

Richardson named U.S. collegiate award winner

Ray Richardson has been named a United States National Collegiate Award winner in medical laboratory technology by the United States Achievement Academy.

Richardson, who attends Meridian Community College, was nominated for the award by Cassandra Johnson, an instructor at the school. His name will be listed in the United States Achievement Academy Official Collegiate Yearbook, published nationally.

The academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American college students. Winners are selected upon the recommendation of professors, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the standards of selection set forth by the academy.

Criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability and recommendation from a professor or director.

Ray Richardson

Richardson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Richardson Sr. of Bay St. Louis.

Research lab sets teacher workshop

Elementary and secondary educators in Mississippi and neighboring states are invited to participate in training sessions Saturday, Jan. 21 at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory's J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium in Biloxi to prepare for the JASON Voyage: Island Earth program to be linked to the MEC&A through live satellite technology for two weeks beginning Feb. 27.

Teachers may attend either the 8 a.m. or 1 p.m. session. Training will last for four hours.

This will be the sixth annual JASON Project sponsored by the JASON Foundation for Education, whose yearly expeditions are designed to excite and engage students in science in technology, as well as to motivate and provide professional development for their teachers through the use of advanced interactive technology called "telepresence."

For the third consecutive year, the MEC&A has been selected as one of more than 25 Primary Interactive Network Sites (PINS) in the United States, United Kingdom, Canada and Bermuda for the live broadcasts.

Expedition Island Earth will take a team of scientists, students and teachers to Hawaii to study volcanic activities and investigate Hawaiian microhabitats to assess the health and change of the planet. Earth's uniqueness in the solar system and the reasons that other planets evolved in ways that were not conducive to life will be examined.

"This teacher workshop will familiarize educators with a curriculum developed to prepare students to attend the broadcasts, as well as to enhance related learning experiences back in the classroom after the broadcasts," said Dr. Sharon H. Walker, MEC&A administrator.

Police hold registration

The Bay St. Louis Police Department reports a total of 31 bicycles were registered this past weekend by the Explorer Unit and Crime Prevention Unit.

Chief Frank McNeil stated the response to the registration program was "less than we expected."

"We had hoped for a much larger response to help deter the crime of bicycle theft."

McNeil also noted Officer Joe Kepfer has scheduled several classes on bicycle safety and rules with local schools through the month of January.

McNeil said as of July 1, 1983, bicycles have been defined as vehicles under the law, and they are subject to all the same rules as motor vehicles, except for those parts which can have no application because of their nature (Mississippi Code 63-3-207).

McNeil said after the bicycle safety courses are completed, patrol officers may write citations to bike riders for violations of laws affecting vehicular traffic.

"Lt. Ocho and Officer Kepfer spoke with the Youth Court some time ago regarding this matter. We were assured we would have the cooperation of the court when it came to traffic violations committed by bicyclists," McNeil said.

"We don't want to ruin anyone's fun on a bike, but neither do we want to investigate traffic accidents involving bicycles and motor vehicles. It has been our experience that the bicycle and rider generally are hurt the worst in those cases."

Lovick-Spinks ends year with bang; looks for world ranking in '95

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II

Margaret Lovick-Spinks, the tennis pro for Casino Magic, ended her 1994 year on the pro tour with a bang. She won the Fern Valley Holiday Championships held in Louisville, Ky.

In the semi-finals of the tournament, Lovick-Spinks defeated Rita Rose of Louisville 6-1, 6-0. In the finals, she handed Lia Sand Green of Nashville a 6-1, 6-0 loss for the title.

Lovick-Spinks said, "I was happy to end the year with a tournament championship. I won six tournaments this year, and the competition was very strong. I am fortunate to be playing some good tennis right now and am working hard to keep it that way."

During the tournament in Louisville, Lovick-Spinks lost only two games. She said if she continues to play that hard then 1995 will be a promising year.

She continued, "I played my best tennis of 1994 in the tournament. I felt like I was on autopilot. The tournament was an indoor tournament, and I play extremely well indoors."

Lovick-Spinks, who was the United States Professional Tennis Association's Female Player of the Year (Southern Division) for 1994, will start playing on the International Tennis Federation European World Tour in hopes of obtaining a world ranking. She will start this tour in late January.

Myron Labat, a local tennis pro, commented on Lovick-Spinks, "I've had the opportunity to play with Margaret, and I know her well. I played mixed doubles with her in the Ultra Slim Fast Team Tennis Championships. She is a great player and very knowledgeable in the game. She deserved the USPTA award this year and will definitely be a force to be reckoned with on the world circuit."

Lovick-Spinks is endorsed by PowerBar and is the director of Tennis for Casino Magic. She has been sponsored by Casino Magic for the past two years. She will retain these duties in 1995.

She also serves on the National Advisory Board for Head Racquet sports.

Good luck to Margaret Lovick-Spinks in her quest for a 1995 world ranking.

Naval Oceanographic office marks Dr. King's birthday

Jan. 11 marked the sixth annual Naval Oceanographic Office's observance honoring Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Commanding Officer, Capt. Dieter K. Rudolph began the observance by stating this year's theme, "Kingian Nonviolence in Action: Empowering Future Generations to Serve." Capt. Rudolph expressed the words of Dr. King in commemoration, "Everybody can be great because anybody can serve ... You only need a heart full of grace. A soul generated by love."

Mr. Eric Labat shared an inspirational rendition of the speech, "Let Freedom Ring." "Let freedom ring from every hill and molehill of Mississippi, from every mountainside, let freedom ring." The USS Tanner bell, located in the Naval Oceanographic Office's lobby, echoes the sound of peace as Lt. Eddie Seaton rang it in the pause of Mr. Labat's speech.

The ringing of King's freedom bell should not stop in our age of the 90's, said guest speaker, Rev. Eugene J. Dew, Jr., pastor of Mount Bethel Baptist Church in Gulfport. Dew as a native of the Mississippi Coast believes strongly in the words of Dr. King. Rev. Dew challenged employees to take action and empower others to help make a difference in our world. It is up to us to care for the lives of our brothers and our sisters, mentioned Rev. Dew.

Equal Employment Opportunity Committee vice-president, Lawanna Baham drew the program to an end with the Litany of Commemoration, "Let My People Go." The closing remarks were given by Assistant Black Employment Coordinator, Joy Carter-Tate. Empowering future generations through the continued use of peace is how Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. believed we should "Let Freedom Ring."

AARP

The American Association of Retired Persons announces the appointment of George Jobe of Biloxi as its new state director.
There are currently 293,000 members and 56 active chapters in the state.

Helen Underwood of Kiln is a member of the AARP state board.
Jobe is a retired Air Force Lieutenant Colonel with a MBA from Auburn University. Among his many military awards are ones received for "Aerial Missions over Combat Zone of Vietnam." His military and civilian experience centered in the Health Care areas, and he has worked as the associate administrator at the Keesler Medical Center and most recently as the executive director of the Kare Center in Biloxi.

He also served as deputy director of the Mississippi Health Planning and Development Agency and chief of the Mississippi Health Planning and Resource Development.

He has been a member of the Governor's Technical Advisory Committee on Long Term Care, and prior to his selection as state Committee.

Jobe hopes to reach the younger AARP members in our state and involve them in the problems facing older persons within their own neighborhoods. He is a strong advocate of reaching out within our business community and other volunteer agencies to offer the resources of the AARP and help form coalitions to give grassroots support for the problems facing our aging population.

The AARP in Mississippi offers a full range of programs to help people remain or return to the workforce, plan for retirement, lobby for needed legislation, as well as offering tax aide and driving
